Here's what we heard in your neighborhood

Empty parking lots near Mattapan Square are an excellent location for some micro-housing apartments, within reach of minimum wage earners.

—Noni, Mattapan

Skate parks. More urban farms or mixed-use spaces that incorporate food growth.

—Joy, Mattapan

More community events so everyone knows everyone.

—Destiny, Mattapan

Residents want direct transit access to jobs especially to Longwood area, improved bike lanes and paths, and better open spaces. In general, residents want more ways to get to their jobs, to other neighborhoods in the city, and to parks and open spaces.

Mattapan residents want vibrant streets with more retail and cultural amenities, especially in Mattapan Square. More housing, especially affordable and middle-income housing, and job training. Jobs in the neighborhood or closer to Mattapan are top priorities.

Workshop participants thought that Mattapan and Roxbury could use more jobs, housing, and neighborhood retail and restaurants. Residents in Mattapan also discussed how the South Boston Waterfront and Downtown could be improved with more housing, restaurants, shops, and open spaces that appeal to a wide range of people.

New Places:

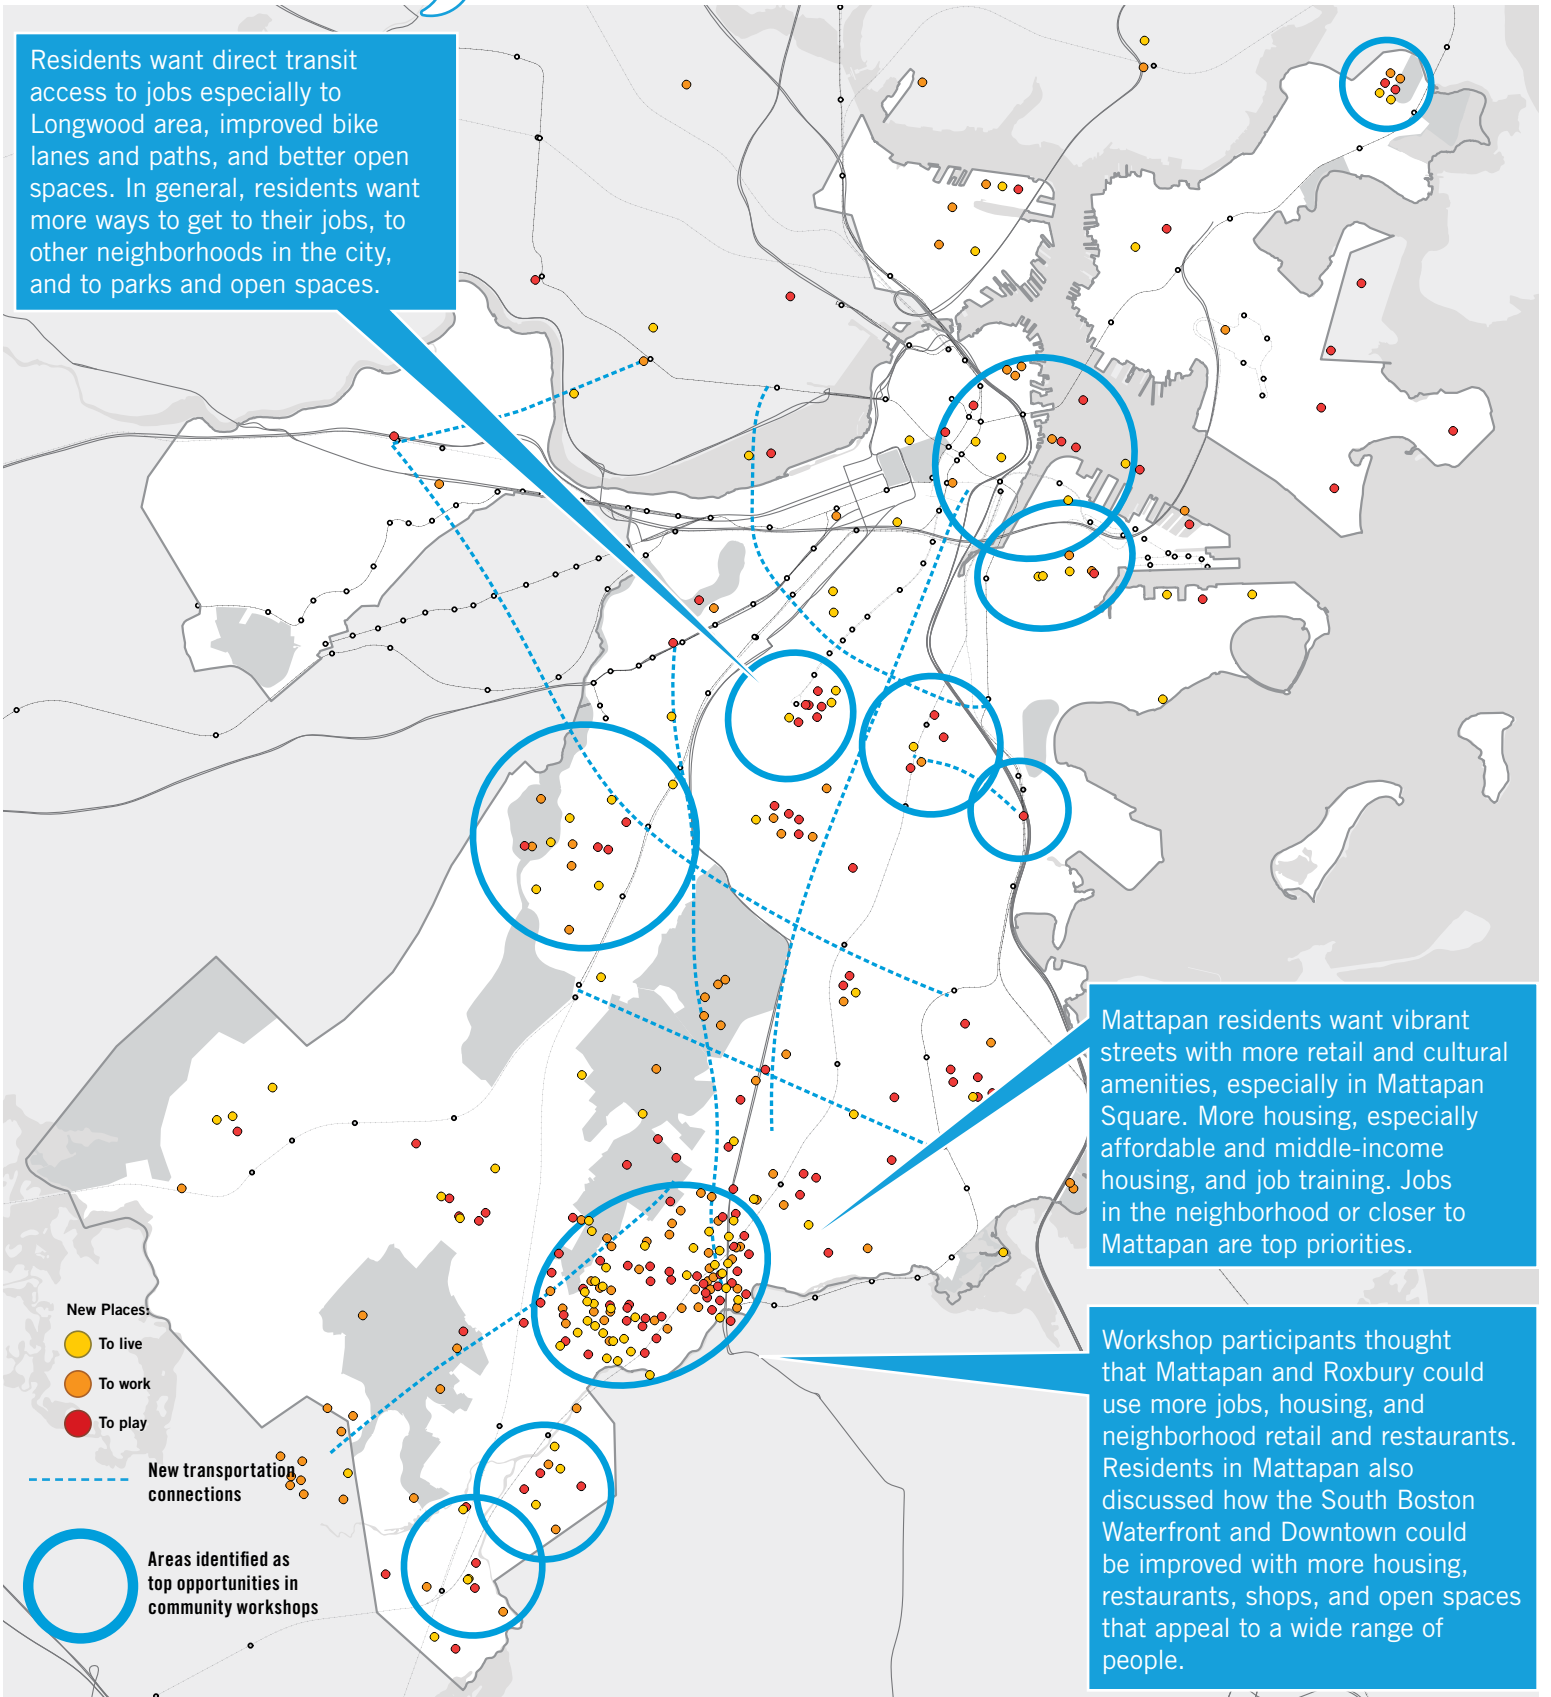

● To live

● To work

● To play

--- New transportation connections

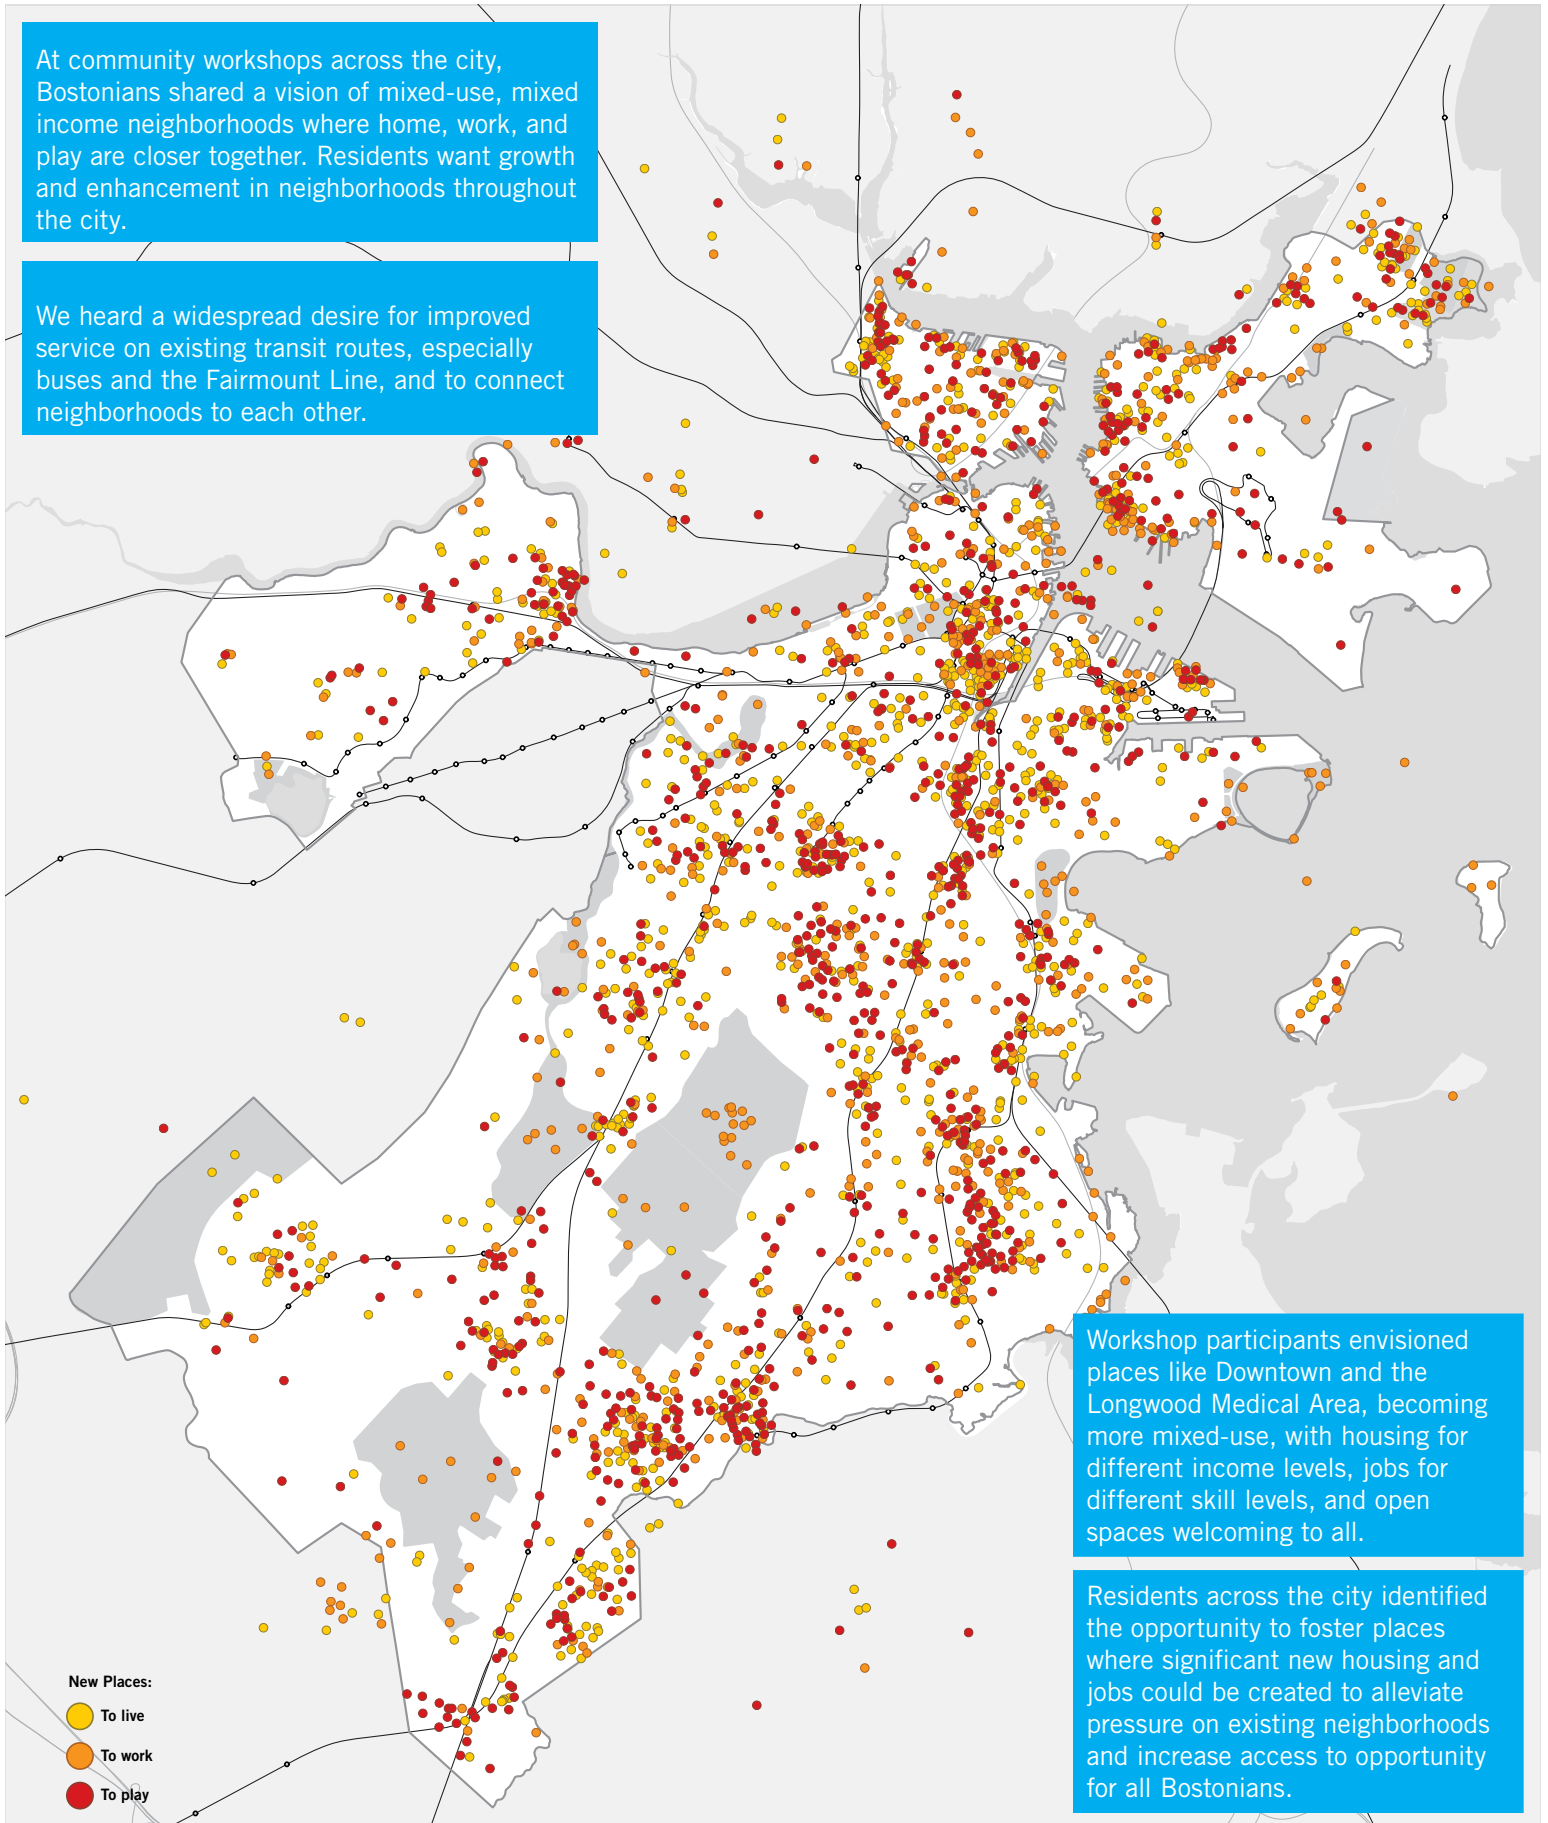

○ Areas identified as top opportunities in community workshops

Here's what we heard citywide

At community workshops across the city, Bostonians shared a vision of mixed-use, mixed income neighborhoods where home, work, and play are closer together. Residents want growth and enhancement in neighborhoods throughout the city.

We heard a widespread desire for improved service on existing transit routes, especially buses and the Fairmount Line, and to connect neighborhoods to each other.

Workshop participants envisioned places like Downtown and the Longwood Medical Area, becoming more mixed-use, with housing for different income levels, jobs for different skill levels, and open spaces welcoming to all.

Residents across the city identified the opportunity to foster places where significant new housing and jobs could be created to alleviate pressure on existing neighborhoods and increase access to opportunity for all Bostonians.
