

Rapid Rehousing Grantees

The Rapid Rehousing (RRH) Grants total $1.1 million and are funded through the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA). Through the grantees below, the RRH program aims to provide critical housing support, such as rental assistance, intensive case management, and housing locator and search services, among other housing-related services for Boston's returning citizens.

According to a study by the Harvard Kennedy School's Rappaport Institute, more than one in three returning citizens are either unhoused or residing in unstable housing six months after release, and after one year, the number increases to nearly half. In light of Boston's ever-increasing rent prices, the RRH grant is a timely intervention, bringing immediate support to those in need.
