
Thriving Downtown

A stylized illustration of a downtown city scene. The background is a light pinkish-orange. In the foreground, there are several colorful buildings in shades of blue, yellow, and purple. Each building has multiple stories with windows and balconies where small figures of people are visible. There are green trees of various sizes scattered throughout the scene. At the bottom, a red and white train is moving along a track. The overall style is clean and modern.

love to have more happening on weekends.

— Dulcie, Downtown ”

Imagine a downtown as a mixed-use neighborhood where people can live, work, and play.

What if we could...

(Check all that appeal to you)

- Create more mixed-income housing to generate activity and encourage residents to walk to work
- Expand infrastructure that supports living downtown (e.g. schools, affordable grocery stores)
- Preserve the unique cultural and historical assets of the city
- Invest in parks (e.g. Boston Common) to keep pace with our growing population
- Encourage a more vibrant downtown through arts and culture, programming, and quality retail
- Ensure affordability for residents and small businesses
